

One screen: the conversion as headline, a slider that rewrites it, one CTA log in

2 h 40 m of scrolling is 64 pages of your book.

Log your social media time once a day. See the pages you read against the pages you could have.

502 pp

2 h 40 m

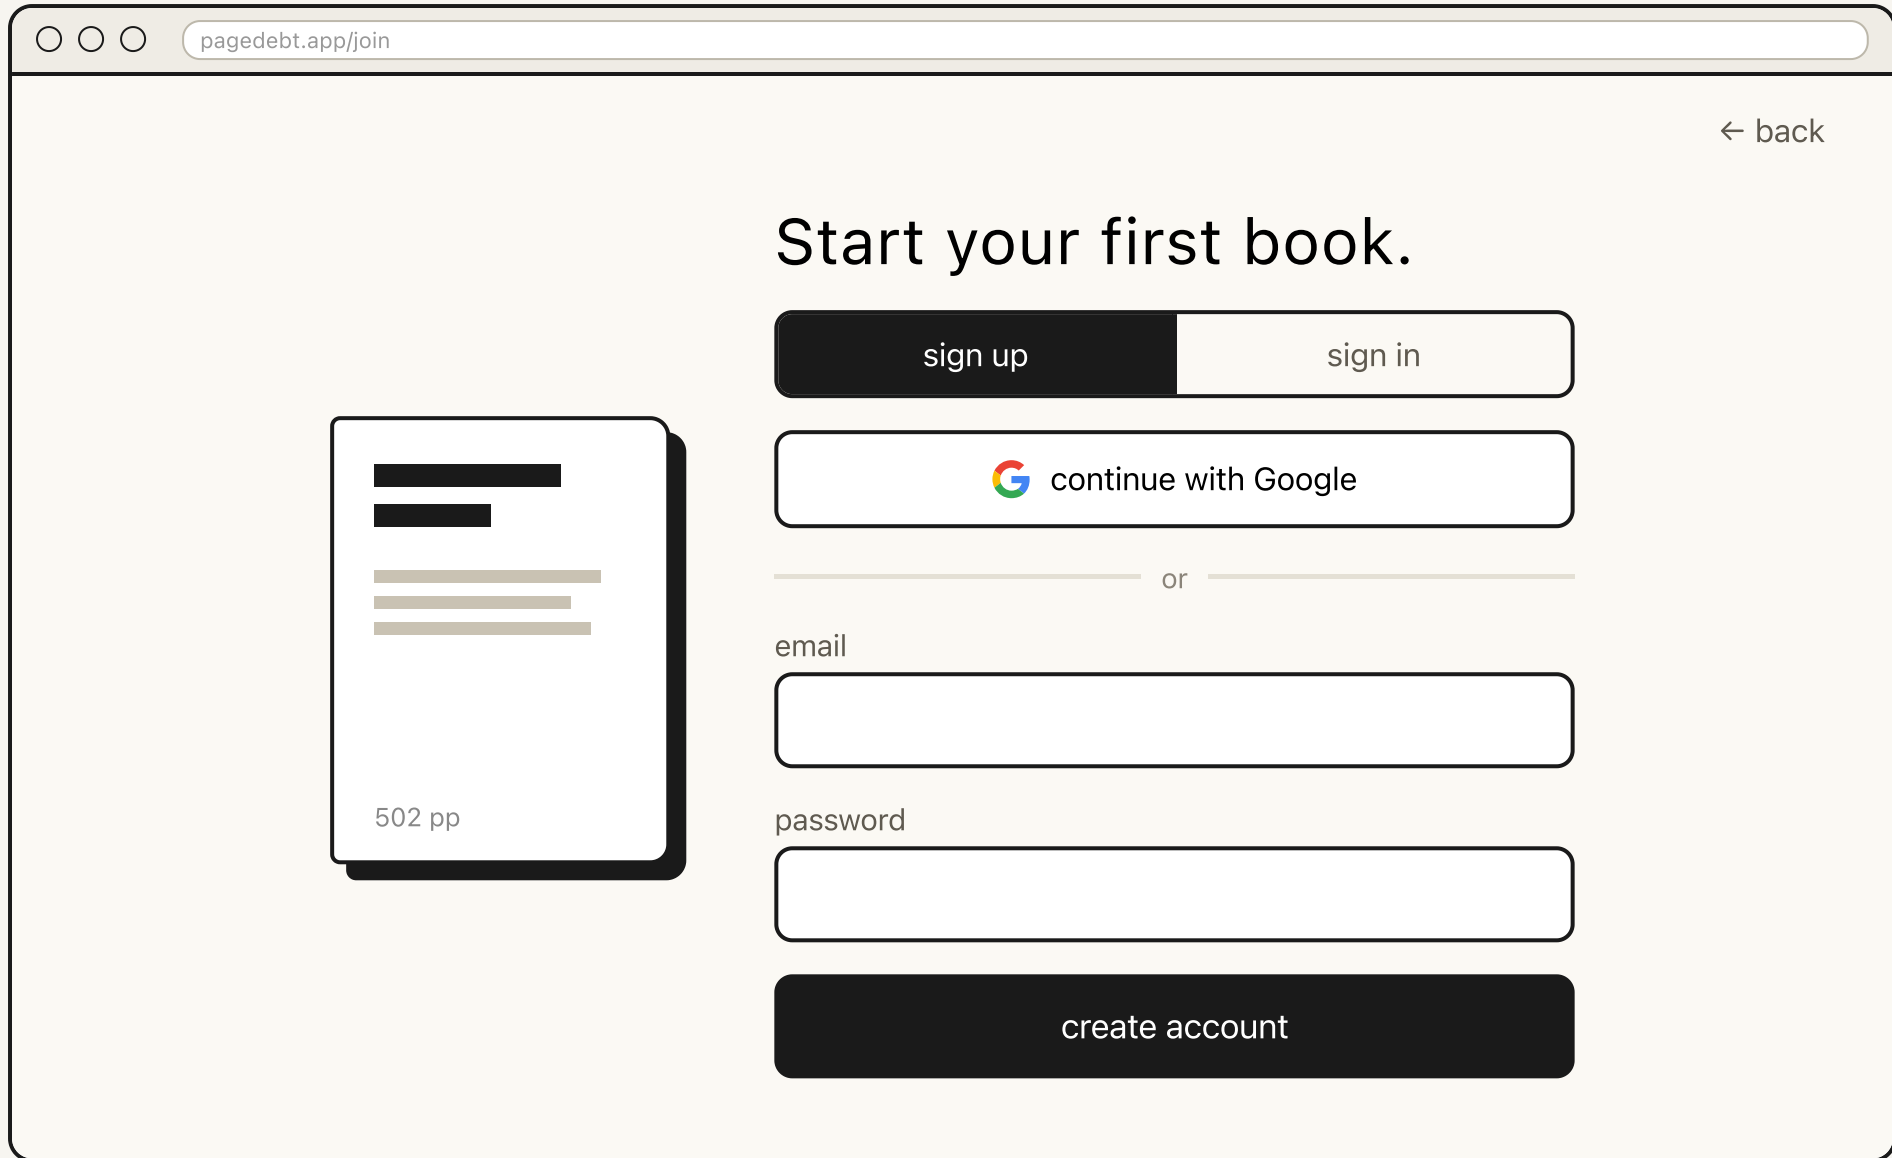

0 h 4 h 8 h

start tracking

SPEC

Annotation only — not part of the page. The slider is the page's only input and it live-rewrites both dashed values in the headline: the handle sets the time (15-min steps, 0–8 h) and the page count recomputes from it ($\text{time} \div 30 \text{ min} \times 24 \text{ pages}$, rounded). Nothing else on the screen changes. Default handle = 2 h 40 m.

Where "start tracking" lands; the book carries over from the landing page

Same page with the tab flipped; returning users land on the shelf

